

Why Leave Early?
Any student who is leaving school early for the Christmas holidays must schedule his ride so as to not interfere with classes. Any student failing to do so will not be given an excuse for these classes for such a reason. This notice comes from Dean Coakley — Student Activities Office.

WSBF Gives Free Seatbelts On "Operation Save A Life"

This year, a newly added feature has been made to WSBF's annual safety marathon—"Operation Save A Life." It has been announced that seat belts will be given away "at any time during the 'safety marathon'" to Clemson students bearing the lucky number on their ID cards. The numbers will be drawn and read on the air. If the winning student comes by the WSBF Studios within one hour from the time the number is called out on the air, he will be given a brand new Greenfield Seatbelt valued at $10.95. The seat belts were given to WSBF through the courtesy of the Greenfield Company, manufacturers of the finest seat belts made, according to Business Director Forest Dixon. Jim Belk, in charge of engineering, says that the engineering staff "will install the seat belts free of charge in any winner's car."

Special Program Schedule
At 12 noon Monday, Dec. 11, WSBF Radio will sign on the air with "Operation Save A Life—Volume Four." The theme being—"Home For The Holidays And Back." The marathon will run until 1 a.m. Saturday. The program will feature news on the hour, every hour, except during the broadcast of "The Messiah" at 9:05 Thursday night.

WSBF Radio Seat Belt Contest Rules

1. The winners will be selected by the drawing of student numbers furnished by the Registrar's Office.
2. The drawing will be conducted by the staff of Radio Station WSBF.
3. When a student number is called out over the air, the person whose I.D. card bears this number has one hour from the time his number is called (the hour being set by the WSBF Program Log) to come to the radio station with his I.D. card and claim his seat belt.

4. No one may claim a seat belt with any but his own I.D. card.

5. The I. D. Card may be presented at the seat belt desk in the offices of WSBF on the third floor of the student center (eighth level), and if the contestant has arrived in the station in the set time and meets the other qualifications set forth, he will be presented with his seat belt.

6. No person will be able to win more than one seat belt.

7. The decisions as to the time of arrival in the station, or any discrepancy in correct I.D. cards will be those of Radio Station WSBF and will be considered final.

8. If the winner desires to have his seat belt installed, he will be given an appointed time when he may bring his car to the Loggia parking lot for the installation. The belts will be installed only during the safety marathon and in the presence of the student in whose car the belt is being installed.

9. All members of the staff of Radio Station WSBF are ineligible.

Little Theater's 2nd Production Presents "See How They Run"

By CHARLOTTE GREER
Tiger Special News Story

Clemson Little Theater's second production, "See How They Run," will be presented at the Food Industries Auditorium Dec. 7, 8 and 9, at 8:15 p.m.

A most appropriate title is "See How They Run." The players are on the run from start to finish. The story takes place in a small English town and particularly involves Reverend Toop, not the most reserved Reverend to be known, and his American actress wife, Penelope, who keeps the town gossip well on their toes. They have a charming young maid, Ida, who manages to run the household and the Toops with relative ease.

Then there is dear Miss Skillion, an old maid. She has chased Rev. Toop for years; never quite made the grade and never quite got over it. The plot begins to unfold with the arrival of Cpl. Clive Winton, who once made a U.S.O. tour of England with Penelope. However, he arrives not as a U.S.A.F. corporal, but as an English vicar.

Now for touches of "foreign intrigue." A Russian spy escapes from the air base guard house and makes his way to the home of the Toops. And guess how he disguises himself! Yup! another vicar! That, however, is not the end of clergymen.

There are two more — real ones — the Bishop of Lox, Penelope's uncle, who makes an ill-timed visit; and mild Reverend Humphrey who merely came to preach a sermon. Whether mild, confused, excited, dramatic or love-sick, they all don their track shoes when Sgt. Towers, boy chaser, comes to weed out the spy from amongst all the clerical garb. (It's rumored that all the clerical disguises were borrowed from Reverend Toop's own wardrobe and that he ends up—but not surely they wouldn't—I hope).

The characters are portrayed by the following people: Penelope—Joan McMinn; Reverend Toop—Bill McMinn; Sgt. Winton—Tom Witherspoon; Ida—Midge Renari; Miss Skillion—Nancy Preston; the spy—Gilbert Miller; the Bishop of Lox—Gene Hallahan; Reverend Humphrey—Jan Bakker; and Sgt. Towers—Frank Luna.

An open meeting of the Little Theater will be held Tuesday (Continued on page 5)

Planning To Rush? Register On Jan. 30

By SONNY STEEN
Tiger News Writer

Rush Week at Clemson begins Jan. 30. Any student who has attended Clemson for a minimum of one semester and is not on scholastic or disciplinary probation is eligible to rush a fraternity.

Everyone who is planning to rush must register with the IFC on Jan. 30. Time and place will be announced later. Registration continues the next day, and an IFC meeting will be held that night for all rushees at 6:30 p.m.

This meeting will be held for the purpose of informing all rushees of the rules and procedures of the Inter-Fraternity Council Rush Week. All necessary information concerning Rush Week will be transmitted to the rushees at this time.

Smokers Follow

Smokers will follow immediately after the meeting. All seven fraternities will hold smokers on Wednesday and Thursday nights of that week. It is suggested by the IFC that all students should try to attend as many of the smokers as possible.

Decisions should not be made the first couple of nights until the rushees have seen all of the fraternities and have gained an overall opinion of the fraternities and their purposes.

Students should attend the open smokers Thursday night since the Friday night smokers will be by invitation only. The rushees should have their choice of fraternities narrowed down by this time, and begin making a final decision.

Saturday night is the big night, according to IFC officers. Parties will be held by all of the fraternities and will begin around 8 p.m. The parties will be by invitation only and the fraternities will feature dances, most of them with combos, or within easy walking distance of the campus. All of the fraternities will be bringing "rush" girls from other schools. The girls are usually "rush" girls for various fraternities at other schools.

Sunday Drop-Ins

On Sunday, drop-ins will be held from 12 noon to 4:30 p.m.; this will be a final opportunity for rushees of each fraternity to talk to each other and make a final decision before quiet hours begin at 5 p.m.

Quiet hours will last until the bids are picked up on Monday and passed out by the IFC between 4 and 8 p.m. All fraternities will submit bids to the IFC and they will distribute them to rushees. After the rushees receive their bid or bids, he will make a decision as to which fraternity he wants to join, and then he will go to the respective fraternity house and accept the bid.

Rush Deadline

There will be no rushing after 12 midnight any night during the week with the exception of the night of the parties. Rushees may not spend the night in a chapter dormitory during rush week unless his residence is in that dormitory. During quiet hours, no conversation or social intercourse between rushees and fraternity men will be allowed. Rushees may not wear or have in their possession the pledge button of any fraternity until they have received one on the afternoon of pledging at the house that they have chosen. NO FRATERNITY MEMBER WILL BE ALLOWED TO SERVE OR EVEN OFFER ALCOHOLIC BEVERAGES TO RUSHEES.

Dr. Wm. H. Wiley

Dr. William H. Wiley has been announced as the new Dean of the School of Agriculture for the 1962-63 academic year. The new Dean will replace Dr. M. D. Farrar who has resigned his position effective July 1, 1962. Dr. Farrar will remain on the staff as a senior scientist.

New Appointment

The new appointment complies with Dr. Farrar's request to return to full-time teaching and research. Dr. Robert C. Edwards, president of Clemson, accepted his request with "deep appreciation for leadership through difficult years which involved both the construction of the R. F. Poole Agricultural Center and the relocation of agricultural research facilities flooded by waters of Hartwell Lake."

Dr. Wiley, 48, is a Texan who has held the joint position of Dean of Agriculture and Extension Director at the University of Rhode Island. He is also vice-chairman of the United States Department of Agriculture Marketing Advisory Committee (poultry division).

Additional Positions

In addition to his positions, Dr. Wiley serves on numerous key committees of the Agricultural Council of the Association of American Land-Grant Colleges and State Universities. At the University of Rhode Island, he previously headed poultry science department and served as director of the Rhode Island Agricultural Experiment Station.

Previous Experience

Dr. Wiley was formerly a statistician with the Texas Agricultural Experiment Station, instructor in poultry and livestock management at Sam Houston State College, and instructor and associate professor of animal industries at the University of Arkansas. State Student Legislature

Future S. C. Politicians Meet; Elects M. Daniel Governor

By BECKY EPTING
Tiger News Editor

Student solons from 19 colleges and universities and representing over 22,000 South Carolina college students met in Columbia in the State House last week for the annual Legislative Session of the South Carolina State Student Legislature.

Included among the students attending the Session were 85 members of the House of Representatives; 31 Senators; and approximately 30 persons who were serving as elected and appointed officials and administrative assistants.

The State Student Legislature, often called the training ground for future South Carolina politicians, is patterned after the General Assembly of the State of South Carolina. Almost every facet of state government has its counterpart in the student organization.

Elected Governor for the 1961-62 year was Mike Daniel of the University of South Carolina, a position held during the just completed year by Bill Schachte of Clemson. Serving as Lt. Governor will be Bud Whetsell of Wofford. Mendell Davis of the College of Charleston was chosen as President Pro Tempore of the Senate. Speaker of the House is Tim Timmerman of Clemson and Speaker Pro Tempore will be John Hughes of Furman.

Controversy played a major role in both the House of Representatives and the Senate during the Session last week. Disagreement, misunderstanding and controversy were also evident during the Joint Session of both Houses Saturday morning.

One of the most heated measures acted upon by the student legislators was a bill which stated that "All public schools which see fit or which are forced to integrate shall be given free access to federal and state appropriations which they would be entitled to receive if they were segregated institutions." The purpose of this bill was that "At no cost should education processes of our state be halted by integration either forced or chosen."

This bill, introduced in the House, was passed by that body by a 54-11 vote. However, when it reached the Senate for debate, the Senate went into Executive Session and remained closed to all persons except Senators for a two hour period. After the first round of voting on the bill in the Senate, the results were 15 against, 12 for, two passing and three abstaining.

After more debate and another vote, the bill was defeated by a vote of 20 to 12. One of the major reasons given by the Senate for their defeat of the measure was that much adverse and misconstrued publicity might be given both the State Student Legislature and the particular measure if it had been passed.

Another measure causing much discussion was a bill to abolish the Blue Laws of South Carolina. This bill stated: "Be it enacted by the South Carolina State Student Legislature that Section 64-71 of the 1952 South Carolina Code, Volume 6, be hereby abolished. Be it further enacted that from the passage of the above stated amendment to S. C. Code, the S. C. State Student Legislature does establish a system whereby each county is empowered to establish such laws concerning labor on Sundays as the citizens of each county deem proper."

Bills were not the only measure introduced and acted upon. A Resolution which was introduced in the House and passed unanimously stated: "WHEREAS the singular most important function of the State of South Carolina is the public education of the youth of this state, and WHEREAS the State of South Carolina has made for the last 10 years intelligent and diligent efforts to raise the level of education and the standards of educational proficiency, and WHEREAS the Honorable Ernest F. Hollings, Governor of the State of South Carolina has outlined a program and concept of educational progress necessary and vital to the general upgrading of education from the elementary through the college and university level. NOW THEREFORE, BE IT RESOLVED that the South Carolina State Student Legislature hereby endorse and commend to the public and to the General Assembly of South Carolina the educational program of Governor Hollings known and styled as 'Operation Fifty to First.' BE IT FURTHER RESOLVED that Governor Ernest F. Hollings be commended for his analysis and recommendations for the improvement of South Carolina's educational effort."

"Be A True Big Brother"

Christmas Kindness Comes To Clemson

Final plans for the "Little Brothers Christmas Fund" have been completed. Soliciting through the dormitories will be Monday night beginning at 9:30 p.m. Married students homes will also be contacted at this same time.

The faculty and administration will be given an opportunity to contribute to the fund on Tuesday through their respective departments. Contributions may also be made in the dining hall at the noon meal for those students who have been missed during one of the other periods for canvassing.

Canvassers

The canvassers will be Student Government officials, including members of the President's Cabinet, Senators, class officers and members of the High Court.

A briefing session will be held for the canvassers at 9 p.m. in Room 1 of the Chemistry Building Monday night. At this time, those persons to solicit for the fund will be given directions and complete hall assignments.

Purchase Gifts

A committee made up of students representing Student Government and other student organizations will purchase the Christmas gifts Thursday afternoon.

Friday night, the entire student body is invited to go to the Boys' Home to give the Christmas presents to the Little Brothers. A caravan will leave from the Loggia at 7 p.m. that night to take the gifts. Refreshments will be furnished by Student Government at the Home for the Little Brothers and all Clemson students there.

Attend Game

The Little Brothers have been invited to attend the Clemson-Virginia basketball game Saturday night as guests of the student body. They will be presented at half-time to their "big brothers," the Clemson students.

This marks the second year that a Christmas project such as this one has been undertaken by the student body. Last year, approximately $425 was collected for the "Little Brothers Christmas Fund." The money was used to buy such gifts as an AM-FM radio, bicycles, toys, clothes and other items.

Solely for Gifts

The total amount of money collected next week will be used solely for Christmas presents for the youngsters. All the gifts will be wrapped and placed under the Christmas tree at the Home for the boys who will open their presents while their "big brothers" are with them.

It is hoped by student leaders, college officials and interested personnel that all Clemson students will remember the true spirit of Christmas and open up their hearts and pocketbooks to the little boys of the Boys Home of America.

Season Motto

These little boys are more than just residents of the Home. For over a year, they have been the "little brothers" of all Clemson students. (Continued on page 4)

Car Regulations

Freshmen will NOT be allowed to have a car on campus before or after the Christmas holidays. Dean Coakley most emphatically stated that all violators will face the consequences of such an action.

A famous tale is retold to a rapt audience. Clemson's Little Brothers know the true meaning of Christmas spirit when they tell the tale of their own Big Brothers. This year another campus-wide solicitation for gift money for these boys will be held on the campus Monday night, December 11.

Monday And Tuesday

Joint Program Of Glee Clubs Holds Christmas Concert

Christmas music will be presented by the Clemson College Glee Club and the Anderson College Choir in a joint program Tuesday night. The concert will be held in the College Auditorium at 8 p.m. under the direction of Dr. Hugh H. McGarity, Clemson, and Mrs. Fred Poplin of Anderson College.

Annual Event

This program has become an annual event during the Christmas season between the two groups. The leaders promise "something for everyone" with selections ranging from Fred Waring's "Mistletoe" to Handel's "Hallelujah Chorus." The two groups will perform both separately and together in an effort to add more variety to the concert. The combined choruses will have a total of 85 voices.

Numbers

Numbers included on the program are "Sing Noel, Ye People," "Come, All Ye People," "Hodie Christus Natus Est," "Mistletoe," "Hymn of the Cherubims," "Lift up Your Heads, O Ye Gates," "Sing Gloria," "Radiant Star," and the "Hallelujah Chorus."

The same program will be presented Monday evening at the Anderson College Auditorium. The public, according to Glee Club officers, is invited to both the concert here and the one in Anderson.

Spirit Makes Tradition; Tradition Makes A Proud College; Upperclassmen Determine Quality Of Spirit

Today's college students form the elite of society, tomorrow's intellectuals and leaders. They have been screened (to varying degrees) and have been accepted as the better third of the high school graduates. However some of these students are inadequately prepared but by necessity, must either work or give up. The choice is up to the students—the long hard road to the sheepskin or the easy back door, without any real attempt to succeed. Choosing the high road to graduation speaks highly in that he has begun to accept responsibility.

Rats are especially notorious for their lack of acceptance of responsibility. After all what have rats to lose? They have not received any grades so why sweat it! All rats know that grades are easily pulled up in either the second semester or the second year. Any rat will tell you that sophomores have good GPRs.

Rats are away from home for the first time and want to show that they are real Clemson men. This may include consuming various beverages in enormous quantities, developing the goof-off habit to a fine skill or challenging other rats to a movie marathon (perhaps ten a week). Being cast loose from the moorings of home leaves these freshmen in dangerous seas with no prospect of making port.

Here is where you, the upperclassmen, comes into the picture. You are the natural leaders of these floundering underclassmen (even many sophomores could be included in this group). As such you are responsible very directly for the behavior of the rats.

Every year the upperclassmen gripe about the loss of spirit in the cheering in the dining hall. But who is really to blame for such a loss of spirit. Why, the rats, who else! No! the upperclassmen are the biggest factor in the loss of spirit. Do you think the rats would have shown such poor spirit if they knew every upperclassmen in the place was breathing down their necks during the cheering. Rats aren't going to cheer if they can help it, it makes them too self-conscious. But they consistently look up to you, the upperclassman, and the type of example that he sets. With the football now in your hands, upperclassman, what do you intend to do—pass or step back and punt?

Clemson has inherent advantages for which many other schools would give their eyeteeth. Traditions have made this college unique in its place along side other colleges in the state and in the country. Very few people think of Clemson without remembering its high campus spirit. Spirit makes tradition; tradition makes a proud college.

But these traditions are not self-evident in any stretch of the imagination. They have to be instilled into the minds and hearts of the entering students. Do you feel that these musty traditions are necessary? How many graduates do you know that haven't praised Clemson whenever they can. The best public relations men that this school has receive no salary; they are graduates of year's previous. Probably 75% of the students in this college are here because of some alumnus extolling the virtues of Clemson.

Let's face the cold, hard facts. Traditions are falling and they need replacement. Traditions can't be built overnight. They are the accumulation of years of toil, sweat, and a few tears. Pride in this college is high, immensely high, but it has to be preached and taught to the uninitiated and that is the job of the upperclassmen. This is Clemson: unique, tough, but good. Let's keep it that way.

And What Of Tomorrow... Again Responsibility Fall On Upperclassmen

Making the Clemson man of tomorrow is once again the responsibility of the upperclassman. He has sweated through two years of college (let's use this word instead of school) and knows many of the ropes and how to untie them. It's not only enough to haze the freshmen but it is necessary to help him make the difficult transition from his carefree high school days to the difficult college days. If more upperclassmen would take an active interest in channeling the excess energy of the freshman, Clemson would have a much lower drop-out rate.

Next semester new freshmen will be entering Clemson. It will be up to the upperclassmen to make these boys welcome and set them on the right road and make sure they have the right attitude to achieve their ultimate goal of graduation.—D. G.

What Is This Thing Called A Newspaper?

Ever ask yourself why you were reading the paper? How did you happen to turn to this page? Maybe you've never stopped to think about it; but did you know that a paper means more than just a sheet you pick up, scan, and discard like letters from an old girl friend?

Think for a minute—you did pay for it, didn't you? Where's your money going, eh?

THE TIGER is the product of an organization called a staff. This staff is an efficient (?) group of people who combine their skills and wrack their brains and drink coffee and swear like sailors in order to turn out six pages once a week of newsprint called a newspaper.

This product is a display of the latest information, the most interesting pictures, the most alluring ads, and the maximum of imagination that can be bludgeoned out of six editors and unnumbered junior staffers.

A business staff handles money and keeps the paper operating financially, a literary staff keeps the readers informed, entertained, and awake, and a circulation staff distributes all this sweat of fertile brows to an insipid public.

So why all the bother? A bunch of people who like drinking coffee and typing endless copy? Not quite. A group who sometimes forget why, who worry about space to be filled, deadlines to be met, and public to be pleased.

But folks who like doing a job and seeing it turn out well. People who enjoy the same things you do. People who give other people a little bit bigger idea of things around them, who spark some interest in an otherwise mind-your-own-business society, who make people think.

So what's it to you? So little that, that and a nickel will buy you an afternoon of pretty darn good entertainment.—Lydia Threatt

Humility And Pride Go Hand In Hand

Point Of View

Development Of Negro Labor Force Provides New Concept

By ZALIN B. GRANT
Tiger Editorial Columnist

"If we are to be able to lift South Carolina from near the bottom in so many areas of economics and public education to a position near the top, we will have to meet our industrial and agricultural challenges with all our resources and the complete and enlightened cooperation of all our people."

"For South Carolina to get on an even economic footing with the rest of America, our state must forsake some of our old ways."

"We have a definite obligation to increase the productivity of Negro citizens; to provide them with good jobs at good wages... By raising their educational and economic status, we would raise the whole economy of the state."

The preceding definitive statements concerning the measures which must be utilized to mitigate the economic plight of South Carolina and to better our standards of living came from former U. S. Senator Charles E. Daniel.

Senator Daniel, industrialist and erstwhile politician, is a member of the board of trustees of Clemson—and I might add, a conservative. His unequivocal espousal of the necessity for better job opportunities for the Negro has possibly pushed development and expansion off the sand-bar of complacency into the flowing waters of economic progress; and it represents, in part, an awakening of the responsible leaders in our state as to the requirements of further industrial development which are, primarily, the need of an increased and skilled labor force.

Industrial development in the past few years has cast a new glimmer to our sagging economy and in its reflection we can see the brightness of, for instance, the $442,000,000 worth of new industries that have settled in this state during only the last two years.

The climate, the resources, our cooperative state government, our tax system, linked with the fact that unions are almost non-existent has the potential of attracting northern industries interested in expanding or relocating. But there is still much to be desired. The thing that is hampering South Carolina the most, placing her in the same category as one or two other southern states, is our poor working force.

At the State Student Legislature, which I attended, Governor Hollings in a lengthy speech repeatedly hammered on the fact that the unskilled labor force is holding up economic development.

In order to develop our economy by attracting new industries, we must come up with some fast answers to this problem, and, although it may prove to be extremely distasteful to some southerners, a part of the answer to the problem hinges on the successful use of the untapped Negro labor force.

Increasing the effectiveness of the Negro labor force by training and opening heretofore "white only" jobs to them would in no way be an altruistic gesture on the part of South Carolinians nor would it be succumbing to pure integration. This is not a matter of integration versus segregation, but one of employing qualified persons, regardless of race, for the betterment of South Carolina.

From the selfish viewpoint, we can see the need for better jobs for Negroes. There are too many Negroes existing on welfare compensation, too many not paying taxes, too many depending entirely upon the generosity of the state and federal governments. These Negroes are a financial burden to us; they are lowering our standard of living.

The Negro should be given his chance to earn his place in our expanding economy and assume the duties of responsible citizens—not by anti-discrimination clauses in contracts of industries dealing with the federal government, but by the immediate realization of South Carolinians that we need the Negro's help to build a better state.

Talk Of The Town

Two-Party System Promises Benefit Of Good Government

By GRAY GARWOOD
Tiger Feature Editor

they return more and more Republicans to political office.

Our daily newspapers will tell us this. Charles Boineau, Jr. of Columbia was the first Republican representative to be elected to the House in many years. Following his example others throughout the state have entered the political ring and have been elected to many various local positions. Before this time Mr. Crawford, mayor of Clemson, was the only elected Republican official in this state.

With the results of the first showings of the two-party system in this state many people who before had kept silent on their political views began to step forward and add their support to the growing Republican party of South Carolina. And with this added support the party has begun to move out in open attack on some of the die-hard Democrats who have been running the state.

Take the case of Senator Johnston. With the one-party system in power he had virtual ownership of his seat in the U. S. Senate. Now, the Republicans are hot on his trail for this seat. Both W. D. Workman of Columbia, a noted journalist, and Robert F. Chapman of Spartanburg, Chairman of the S. C. Republican party, are hoping to be nominated to run against Sen. Johnston when the state Republican convention meets in March.

This opposition is causing the state democrats to examine their own set-up. This is good! After years of ruling alone they are beginning to see the signs pointing towards a true two-party system in South Carolina. And if the state party realizes this then so will the national party. None can deny that the role of the South in national politics—especially at election time—is indeed a small one.

We have been ignored because we were a one-party South, and as such the Democratic party could depend on the mass to vote the same ticket that they always have. This will not be the case in the future for now that the vote here has a good chance of going another way they must develop new tactics that will appeal to the South also.

With the growth of the two-party system in the South will come many benefits that we can't afford to ignore. Our future status as a leader in Southern politics will depend on this; and industry and commercial growth vital to our existence will naturally follow.

One Man's Opinion

Rate Of Reading Needs Improvement

By FRED BISHOP
Tiger Associate Editor

In reading over W. D. Workman's editorial column in the Greenville News one week ago, we came across the idea that the center of attraction at an academic institution should be the library and not the stadium. He was discussing what was needed in higher education in the South.

We agree with his statement, but just how do you make such a situation come about. In reading over some of the things that Freshmen feel they need help with, we find that many of them include "improved reading skills."

This brings us to this idea... we believe that some sort of speed-reading course ought to be introduced at Clemson. This could be handled very well by the English Department and we feel there would be a great demand for such a course, if offered.

Today the student is confronted with numerous outside as well as inside reading assignments. In addition to this, if he is interested, he reads several news magazines each week. Along with this, he reads other magazines and books for entertainment or general information.

Does the student then have time to make the library a center of attraction in his academic life? Everyone knows that there are volumes upon volumes of excellent books and articles that could be read, but who has the time to consume such great quantities of material, particularly when you consider required reading and other material brought out each day. If you want to get an idea of what is put out each week, come by the Tiger office sometime and see the great quantities of material that is published and sent to us each week.

The prime problem in being informed is not the scarcity of material, but in finding time to read all of the information. This is why we need a Speedreading course—to have an informed student body. It also would not surprise me in the least to see a general increase in grades particularly with a serious effort made by students and instructor to try to improve rate of reading and comprehension.

As a part of the course there might be an effort made to interest students in keeping informed in world events, by requiring them to bring newspapers to class daily and discussing various items and editorials in the paper in each class. This would help students to understand news and what to look for in newspapers and magazines. This would generally improve the overall knowledge of the students taking the courses. There also might be an effort to increase vocabulary, by picking up words in the newspaper or magazines and finding out what they mean. This was done effectively in one of our public speaking classes.

All of this is offered as a matter of consideration, but we feel that improved rate of reading is needed before the possibility of the library becoming a center of attraction at an academic institution becomes a reality. All that is needed is a one semester course, (We hope this becomes a reality soon, because we would like to take such a course before we graduate.)

Debate Draws Students

Last week I attended along with many other interested persons a debate sponsored by the Pre-Law Society of Clemson College. The topic was integration versus segregation. By all means it did not turn out to be a debate, and both of the speakers talked about two different aspects of the general subject. Neither speaker debated, but presented their separate views on two different topics which are indirectly connected with integration and segregation.

I do not mean to sound harsh in that the program turned out differently from its intended purpose. On the contrary, such debates should be given more often on timely topics. The interest shown by the students are indicative of the need for such events and I feel that as long as the topics are interesting then there will be a good audience.

I will not discuss now how I agreed or disagreed with the speakers except to say that I disagreed in part with both. I had my views on the subject before I attended the meeting and had them altered little due to the additional knowledge acquired.

In looking back over an old column by Buck Deaton which appeared in the September 25, 1959 issue of the Tiger, I find some interesting words. The article in general proposes that there ought to be a revision of the Grade-Point-Ratio System.

The main points of the column were that a closer system of grading would provide more incentive during exams and provide a more representative grade for the student. The idea was basically sound and needed consideration.

This column appeared more than two years ago. At the present time I have had no indication that the present system we have is going to be changed or that any research is being carried on.

I believe that the administration should start considering the matter and doing some surveys on the possibility of change. If Clemson waits until it has 8,000 students to change then there will only be twice as many complications.

What should be done and why? Wait until next week.

Letters To Tom Clemson

Anti-Anti Commie

Dear Tom,
In replying to Mr. Zalin B. Grant's editorial of November 17, 1961, "Extremism Loses Sight of Goal," I believe that every informed, discerning person will agree that Communism is a grave threat to the security of our Country.

If a poll were taken, I would imagine that at least 75% of the American people would say that they are unalterably opposed to this evil. A few of this 95% have become gravely concerned about this threat and have resolved to exert every effort to preserve our Constitutional form of Government and to fight Communism.

This is done to insure to themselves the historic American freedoms and liberties. Others couldn't care less. Both "extremists" groups, however, are exercising their right of individual choice—one of our basic, American freedoms. An interesting phenomenon now arises. The few who are actively opposing Communism are immediately confronted with howls of anguish from the "Left." These self appointed monitors of the political norm hurl the words "extremists" or "fanatics" indiscriminately at anyone who criticizes the tragic mistakes which our Government has made in fighting Communism or who offers a way to combat these losses.

Obviously, we are in the Cold War; obviously, we are losing the Cold War; obviously, something must be done. The grass-roots throughout the country seem to be awakening to this realization. Mr. Edward Hunter, expert on psychological warfare, who originated the term "brainwashing" said in his testimony to the Senate Internal Security Subcommittee in July, 1961, that there was a "highly coordinated drive to tear this anti-Communist movement up by the roots and destroy it." Mr. Hunter said that this anti-Communist drive was openly initiated to the Communists through out the world in the Red Manifesto of December 5, 1960, and was being intensified now in this country.

This anti - anti Communist movement is to combat the anti-Communist movement. It is so easy for us to fall into the anti-anti Communist trap by labeling all that earnestly seek to fight Communism as extremists or radicals. The anti-anti Communist frequently makes such broad statements to the effect that the "extremists" organizations have thousands of poorly informed citizens who accuse all who disagree with them of being Communists. That is a grossly irresponsible statement. No people are named who supposedly erroneously labeled people as Communists—just smears.

The statement is frequently made by the anti-anti Communist that "extremists" organizations such as the John Birch Society, The Americans for Freedom, and The Christian anti-Communist Crusade have no positive program but are merely anti-Communist.

As far as one group is concerned, this is an erroneous statement. The John Birch Society Bulletin of September 1, 1961 states: "The John Birch Society is anti-Communist, yes. Resolutely and aggressively so. Our fight against the Communist conspiracy is today the most important and most urgent part of our total effort. But this fight is still purely incidental to our positive and permanent purpose. That purpose is to bring about less Government, more responsibility, and a better world."

In conclusion, I would like to quote from the November 27, 1961, Wall Street Journal editorial, "Here as is so frequently the case, there is in the motley collection of laments and urgings of those who are branded as 'extremists' a grain of harsh truth. Perhaps that is why extremists are always so irritating; we can all glimpse the truths buried in their outpourings — but we just don't want to look at them. We dismiss them, and what they say, at our peril."

Deutschland

Clemson College Students:
In a few spare moments, I thought that I would write a brief letter to my college friends about Deutschland. Let me say that these are my opinions of the moment and can easily be changed or may be completely different from anyone else's.

I will say first that I have found Germany today to be very much like America and a great deal like South Carolina. They are extremely helpful to the foreigner and have a great deal of interest in the American. I have found them to be genuinely interested in America. Life in Germany is one that is slightly more real than ours in the States. They live more around nature and the natural gifts of the earth than around man-made wonders as we do.

Cars, TV, radio, and money are a luxury to these people. So are ice cubes and hot water. The various forms of culture are more a way of life here than just a thing that "the people have to do." I must say that an education is something of great importance, and not just a sideline as it is in some of our American institutions.

Rothenburg, Tauber is a small 15th century stadt in the "land" of Bavaria. It is a fairly tale city. In fact it has been made by German law to remain as such and can not change. Also at this time MGM is making a cinerama production of "The Wonderful World of the Brothers Grimm" with Karl Heinz Boehm, an Austrian actor, and Lawrence Harvey, a British actor, here. Rothenburg is really as picturesque as in the movie if you should see it.

I am now attending the Goethe Institute, which is considered the best for this language. I believe that they have places all over the world. It has an international student group of 75-21 are Americans, 34 are Persians, and the rest are from Europe and Asia. The American students here have adjusted to this completely different environment better than most of the others.

I have also found so far that the American today conducts himself very admirably, contrary to some of the reports that I had heard before I came over. The American that conducts himself well is a greatly respected person; unfortunately there is a very good reason for some American feeling for anti-Europe traveling and that is that the prices are sometimes higher playing on the ignorance of the "supposedly very wealthy" American. I am afraid that everyone in America is very rich, at least this is how the European feels.

A note of interest—while I was eating in Stuttgart, by accident I met an elderly couple from Penn. During our brief discussion, I discovered that he has employed several of our electrical engineering students and regards Clemson as one of the best. "While Clemson is relatively a small school, it is very well known as a superb school in the scientific world."

I have heard this from many American industrialists that I have talked to over here in Europe. I think that if such high praise has been made about the Engineering Department that you the students should really be proud to be a "Clemson Gentleman" and can make the name of Clemson even better known. That goes even more for the other schools!

Sincerely yours,
Andrew H. Cochran, '64

held Saturday morning, the recently drafted Rules and General Rules of the South Carolina State Student Legislature were the centers of controversy. At the banquet held two nights previously, the Governor had called for a token vote of approval on the Rules, and had received it. This action was a necessary one so that nominations could be made for the positions of U. S. Senator (two), U. S. Representative and Chief Justice, all created by the Rules.

When the two houses met together Saturday, however, for the actual adoption of the Rules and General Rules, they were not accepted by the group after nearly three and one-half hours of debate. Instead, compromising measures were acceptable to the legislators.

The final measures adopted by the group on this subject were that the Governor appoint a constitution committee made up of five persons from three schools to draw up a constitution and rules. The other acceptable measure was the adoption of pages 6-16 of the Rules of the South Carolina State Student Legislature, the very document which had previously failed to meet the approval of the delegates. The section adopted deals with the Executive Branch and the officers of the Senate and of the House.

With the failure of the Rules to be approved, the four positions which these Rules had created were abolished and the candidates who had been nominated for these offices at the banquet were deprived of the opportunity of seeking office.

Governor Ernest F. Hollings and Senator Olin D. Johnston both addressed the group. Sen. Johnston was the principal speaker at the banquet last Thursday night while Gov. Hollings appeared before a Joint Session late Friday afternoon.

Gov. Hollings, in speaking to the delegates, became the first Governor of the State of South Carolina to appear before a session of the South Carolina State Student Legislature. He gave a short speech with particular emphasis on the move of industry to the state.

Immediately following his address, Gov. Hollings made an unprecedented action. He opened the floor to a question and answer session. He answered all questions posed by the student legislature, the majority of the questions dealing with problems concerning the State.

We all know it isn't human to be perfect and too many of us take advantage of it.

Junior Class Announces Date For This Year's Junior Follies

Junior Follies has been tentatively set for April 12, according to Joe Swann, President of the Junior Class. At a meeting of Junior Class officers, President Swann emphasized that the work for the juniors "has just begun."

A report on the financial status was heard and briefly discussed. Also, it was announced that Andy Dowling and Baynard Ellis had been placed in charge of Junior Follies and the officers present expressed their approval of these two members of the class.

Plans are also underway for the annual Junior-Senior Banquet. Different committees are being formed and students of the class will be asked to serve on at least one committee either on Junior Follies or Junior-Senior.

Present at the officers meeting were: Joe Swann, president; Tatum Gressette, vice-president; Zalin B. Grant, secretary; and Terry Kinard, treasurer.

The old quarrel between North and South has spread out to include East and West and is now called contract bridge.

Tigerbits Caps And Gowns—Last Chance!

December 11 is the last day for students to withdraw from school without a record of this semester grades being placed on the files. The date of December 16 found in the semester class booklet is erroneous and should be disregarded. The rule regarding this procedure states that a student must withdraw before the last three academic weeks of classes, not just the last three calendar weeks.

Caps And Gowns—Last Chance

Caps and gowns can be ordered for the LAST time this semester for January graduates. Measurements and orders will be taken in the Co-ed Lounge on Monday, December 11, between 1:30 and 4:00 and 7:00 to 10:00 in the afternoon and night. This will absolutely be the last opportunity for gowns this semester and seniors must comply if they wish to be in the graduation ceremonies.

"The Phi Kaps," local singing group, will be featured tonight at a Mixer sponsored jointly by Omicron sorority and Phi Kappa Delta fraternity in the Little Gym from 8 p.m. until midnight. Admission will be 50c for boys; girls admitted free.

"The Phi Kaps" are made up of Willie Stephenson, Speight Byrd, Emerson Byrd and Jakey

Weichel. This year the group has merged with the Jungaleers in an effort to better each group by supplementing the other's needs.

Last year the group appeared at Junior Follies and later made appearances at the Ladies' Man contest, Fraternity Sing, several fraternity parties and Senior Day Lawn Party.

Christmas Ball In Sumter

The College Cotillion Club will hold its annual Christmas Ball at the Shrine Club in Sumter on Dec. 27 from 9 p.m. to 1 a.m.

The dance will be semi-formal and features Sammy Cook and his Key Notes. Tickets are $3 per couple. All Clemson students are invited.

Dr. Michael H. Langford of Blythewood, S. C. has worked for the past four years in Panama helping to develop disease resistant rubber trees and field crops. He has previously worked in Brazil and other South American countries. He has developed disease resistant rubber trees and higher yielding ones.

Dr. Langford has also helped in a training program for Panamanian agricultural technicians to help them determine the various crop diseases and how to control them.

Crane Speaks On Textiles

Textile industry of the future, controlled through the magic of electronic computers, was envisioned at a Clemson textile seminar by A. J. Crane, controller of Springs Mills in Lancaster.

Mathematical imperfections in computer uses for industrial management, Crane said, could be ironed out in about 10 years if industry decides to underwrite high research costs.

Computers do not solve problems, he said, but they provide the tools and incentive for solving them.

Nuclear energy, automation and the computer, Crane declared, are the three great discoveries of the age. Automation replaced muscle; the computer replaced brains. But the computer will prove the greatest, he said, because it is the basis for all three.

The sign of the amateur

LESSON 5 -The importance of head control

We are told that bird watchers, who always take notes while they watch, are able to keep one eye on the bird and one eye on the notebook. Eye dexterity of this type is also a great asset to the girl watcher. It enables him to watch two girls at the same time, even when the girls are sitting on opposite sides of a classroom. The beginner, who must watch the girls one at a time in a situation of this type, must learn to restrict his movements to the eye-balls. The girl watcher never moves his head. Undue head-turning, particularly if it is accompanied by shouts or whistles, is the sign of the amateur. (If you want something to shout about, try a Pall Mall!)

Tips On Taming Tender Gender

The first thing a man should get straight is that they're people too. Though their voices are high-pitched, their muscles undeveloped, and the way they throw a ball downright peculiar—women are human beings.

Take flattery, for instance.

They eat it up, and the same basic brand of blarney feeds both male and female egos. The male flatterer, of course, sometimes wonders how a woman being flattered can believe what he's telling her. But she can... readily.

To give her a bigger boost than a pair of three-inch high heels, ask her advice — and sometimes take it. Does she like your tie? If not, never wear it again — with her. Does she think you should take another job? She'll be flattered that you trust her judgment—if you do.

But don't ask a homemaker (never say housewife) what she's been doing all day. The question implies she has a lot of free time. Never tell a girl she looks better now, without a lot of makeup. Men aren't supposed to notice make-up — only beautiful hair-dos, fashionable dresses and haunting perfume.

When you compliment her intelligence, as you should do often, don't say "You know a lot about politics — for a woman." And keep away from references to "the little woman," "the better half" and "fair sex" — they sound, and are, condescending.

Many gals give guys the air simply because they lack confidence. They are afraid you might hurt them later, so they reject you first. So always let a girl know you like her.

If you're buying a girl perfume, don't give the "girl-next-door" type. She'll buy that for herself. Get her the torrid kind even if she is a bookworm. Always emphasize a girl's femininity. Be prepared to open doors for her and help her on with her coat. Sometimes a girl prefers doing these things for herself—but be ready when she expects you to do it.

There's a story about a young student who, unshaven and unbathed, and wearing dungarees, took out his favorite girl. He reasoned: if she really loves me, she'll love me as I really am. In spite of skeptics, the girl married him. They lived happily ever after—on his father's millions.

Another great fault women complain of is: poor appearance of a man's clothing. You may not care if your socks clash with your tie or if your shirt collars are ragged—but women notice these things, and don't forget.

Never mention money on a date. Even if you are shocked by the parking-lot attendant's demand or by the large check in a restaurant, don't embarrass your companion by complaining. You should have found out in advance how much you would be soaked.

By now you have the general idea. But for your further guidance, a researcher for the Shulton Laboratories has devised a 10-question quiz to test your present performance.

1. Do you ever steal admiring glances at her when you know she's looking?
2. Act mildly jealous when she talks to another man?
3. Frequently bring her flowers, candy or other presents for no special reason?

4. Compliment her often on the way she looks or cooks?
5. Take her out on the town to show her off once a month?
6. Never contradict her outright?
7. Always ask her where she would like to eat and how she would like to spend the evening?
8. Wear the ties she gives you—even if it kills you?
9. Never show up late for an appointment with her?
10. Make advance reservations whenever possible, instead of escorting her from one overcrowded place to another?

If you can answer "yes" to each of these questions, you are already on your way to being a Don Juan. All you need to remember—all the time—is that even if women can sob through an entire movie—yet remain unmoved when your team loses a heartbreaker, women are people.

"The Bare Glare" Stares Back

Editor's Note: The following article appeared on November 3, 1949, in the TIGER. Though Clemson is no longer military and has changed quite a bit, we feel the old empty mailbox still seems to be one of the Clemson students' most perplexing problems.

The curtains of night were drawn and the silhouetted tree tops. I myself sensed mystery and surprise all about me, but I had no time to lose, to worry or fear—I was in a hurry.

As I weaved in and out through the oncoming waves of cadets, the blackened, lifeless Physics Building faded into the background. Happy smiling people passed me in groups chatting freely with each other. I turned my head neither left nor right, but walked steady on my course.

My mind was as blank as a prison wall. Nevertheless, I was nearing my objective — the P. O. The dim lights shone weirdly through the bare windows. I quickly stepped inside, glancing behind me to perceive if there were any pursuers following. I snuk (past tense of sneak) up to a corner and cautiously peaked around it.

No one was in sight! My right hand shot into my pocket like a flash. Suddenly a feeling of worry and instantaneous disappointment crept over me. I had no pocket! Where was my pocket? Oh, yes, when I was taking "Rat chemistry" a small bottle of nitric acid was imprisoned in my pocket. Some of it must not have been imprisoned!

"I'm cracking up," I said to myself. "Calm down, take your time and get organized." I assured myself again. Then I reasoned, "First I've got to find a pocket before I can find my key." Suddenly it hit me like a bolt of lightning: "Try the other pocket." As I thrust my hand into my other pocket it came into contact with a small piece of metal. The Key! The Key! Now where's my box? Oh yes, 1210-1220—there it is, 1230.

I stepped a little to one side to get the key inserted. With untiring effort, I twisted the key slightly to the right. The door of the box swung open. Quickly I jumped in front of it. I froze in my tracks; I couldn't believe what my eyes perceived.

Semiconsciously I yelled, "No, pas encore, pas encore!" But it was there inevitably. There it lay in my box—unmercifully staring at me—that low villain, THE BARE GLARE! I grabbed my key and slammed the door. My mind was cluttered with cobwebs and fear. (The cobwebs were there as a result of a one-track mind. All one-track minds suffer from this disease.) I walked to the P. O. contemplating a plan by which I could strategically outmaneuver the ruthless villain. Between the P.O. and the Physics building I thought of a plan. The Bare Glare had defeated me time and again, but this time I was going to foil it.

When I reached my room I found a pencil and paper and sat down at a table and began to write madly. As soon as I had finished, I gave it to a rat and told him to mail it.

When the next day rolled around, I bounded down to the P. O. (I chuckled fiendishly to myself as I bounded). I was a hero and I knew it. Who besides me could have formulated such an ingenious plan of strategy, such as mailing myself a letter. I could see the headlines as plain as a black paper in a white suit. "CLEMSON STUDENT DEFEATS ARCH - VILLAIN, THE BARE GLARE!" What a story!

By this time I was becoming somewhat winded, so I slowed down to a walk. I began to take note of my surroundings — I stopped abruptly. I was nearing the Baptist Church!

In my rush, I had been so enthralled in self-praise that I found myself on my way to Pickens, so I wheeled around and retraced my steps to the P. O.

When I reached the door, I flung it open triumphantly and marched with my head held high, directly to my box. I procured the key, opened the box, and peered in. There within the dull stained walls of my box lay the BARE GLARE peering at me. Instantly I realized that I was foiled again. In my haste I had forgotten to do one vital thing to the letter — put a stamp on it.

Since that dreadful day, I haven't bothered to go near the P. O. Instead, in my stern, hard voice, I say to my trembling rat, "Get thee hence and check my P. O." If I personally have to go downtown—I go via Hotel Hill.

All ACC Team Selected; Parker Neglected

Football has been over for a couple of weeks now and the all-American selections are just beginning to come out. Gabriel and Collins at quarterback and end are representing the ACC in most of the polls. In the all conference choices, it seems to me that Clemson players are being unduly neglected. On most of the polls, Clemson did not even place a man on the first team. Conspicuously absent on the teams were Calvin West, Tommy King and Jim Parker. How anybody could place Bob Elliot of UNC in the backfield ahead of Parker is beyond me.

Now that football season is over, Clemson's improved roundballers are taking the court. Anyone who went to the VMI and North Carolina games certainly has been getting their share of excitement. The Tigers beat VMI by out shooting and outrebounding them. They threw the ball away so many times that VMI actually made more field goals despite the fact that they were outshot and outrebounded. This is the sophomores downfall. They simply are very prone to make mistakes. This was never more evident than against North Carolina, when the Tigers gave the ball away too many times.

With the help of the umpires, who went whistle-happy on charging fouls, North Carolina was able to eke out a 54-52 victory. It was a shame for the Tigers to lose in the last few seconds after overcoming a 12 point deficit and tying the score with 26 seconds left. Nick Milasnovich was the coolest man in the place as he dropped in the two free throws that finally tied the score. The Tigers were obviously nervous at the prospect of playing the Tar Heels, and it seems to me that this was their chief downfall. North Carolina obviously does not have the powerhouse that they have had in the past, and they are going to lose several before this year is over. It's a shame that the Tigers could not have started them off on their losing ways.

Clemson's Depth Best Ever

One thing that Clemson has this year is the depth. Maravich is constantly able to go to his bench. When the Tigers made their second half surge against North Carolina, practically the whole second team was in. The star for the game was Milasnovich, who was considered a second-stringer. Another big gun in the Tiger attack was Manning Privette, who came off the bench to get several big buckets for the Tigers. Woody Morgan another second-string six-eight boy was also a big factor with his rebounding in the UNC game as well as the VMI game.

Before this year is over, this team is going to start to pull together and may pull some real surprises. All these sophomores need is a little experience and they are going to be real trouble. They have everything else; shooting ability, rebounding, and hustle and desire.

Clemson Has Another Good Frosh Team

Another bright surprise for the Clemson folk is the play of the freshman team. While not supposed to have the powerhouse that the Cubs had last year, this team shows a lot of hustle, and they almost upset the Piedmont Rangers Tuesday night. They do not have a tall team, but thus far they have been doing a good job on the blackboards. They are led by Sam Cohen, Rudy Antonic, Donnie Seitz, and two hustling non-scholarship boys Ronnie Cox and Stuart Mac Holmes.

Clemson players being picked in the pro-football draft were Gary Barnes, by Green Bay in the NFL and New York in the AFL; Ronnie Osborne, by the Dallas Cowboys; and Jimmy King by St. Louis. The winner for the year in the WE PICK 'EM was Dick Pregnall, with Tommy Peele a close second. Frank Howard is coaching in the annual North-South all-star game this year. It sure looks funny seeing Choppy Patterson sitting on the freshmen bench each game. Choppy is coaching the freshmen in the absence of freshman coach Bobby Roberts who is scouting prospects for next year.

Basketball Or Football . . .

It's Hard To Tell

The Tiger basketballers hit the floor as the action gets fast and furious. From these two shots, it appears that most of the game was played on the floor, but actually it was a thrilling game all the way.

Clemson Seeks 2nd Win After Loss To N. Carolina

Tomorrow night, Clemson hosts the University of Virginia in their third consecutive home game. The Tigers will be seeking to better their won-lost record of 1-1, and will also be seeking to break into the conference win column at Virginia's expense.

Clemson's record at present includes a victory over VMI and a loss to North Carolina. Virginia also has a loss to North Carolina and a victory over George Washington to boast a 1-1 record. The Tar Heels defeated the Cavaliers 80-46 in the opener of the season for both teams.

Virginia is led by sharp-shooting guard Tony Laquin-tano, who was on most second teams in the all-ACC polls last year. They also have their other top three scorers back in John Hastbrouck, Gene Engel, and Ron Miller. Any team with four returning starters is bound to be tough, especially on our gang of sophomores.

Clemson will probably start their same team of Brennan and Bohonak at guards, Burnisky and Tommy Mahaffey at forwards, and Donnie Mahaffey at center. The second team has been getting to play nearly as much as the first, and can look forward to considerable action.

These top reserves are Nick Milasnovich, and Bob Benson at guards, Woody Morgan and Richard Hall at forwards, and Manning Privette at center. This group of boys nearly pulled out a victory against North Carolina.

The top scorers thus far have been Jim Brennan with 13.5, and Nick Milasnovich with 12.5 points per game. The big rebounders have been Tommy and Donnie Mahaffey and Privette and Morgan. With the reserve power that Clemson possesses, the scoring should be widely distributed among several people.

Next week the Tigers journey to Florida State to play the Seminoles. Last year the Tigers lost both games to the Florida State quintet, and they will be out for revenge. This game will be played at Tallahassee.

Then Clemson journeys to Charleston to play The Citadel on Saturday, Dec. 16. The Tigers upset the Bulldogs behind the 39 point performance of Choppy Patterson last year. The cadets are led by All-Southern performer Gary Daniels.

Before the Virginia game, the Cubs will entertain the Georgia Bulldogs in a game starting at six o'clock. The Cubs will probably start their usual five some of Sam Conn, Rudy Antonic, Donnie Seitz, Ronnie Cox, and Stuart Mac Holmes.

"The more specialists society creates to cope with its complexities, the easier it can be for a non-specialist to achieve success.

If that seems paradoxical, look at it this way: the more men who go out for specific positions on the ball club, the more chance you have to wind up as manager!

Today's world—in government, business, the arts, even science—needs the well-rounded man. He's the man who can see the entire picture...the man who can draw on a broad background of knowledge, evaluate the problem, then assign the details to specialists.

The world of entertainment may seem somewhat special, but it's a case in point. These days, it demands more of its people than ever before. Today's musical comedy score is often as sophisticated as grand opera. Drama draws heavily on psychology and history. Television productions are concerned with nuclear science and political science. If you've ever watched 'Omnibus' you may have seen how our productions have run the gamut of a wide range of man's interests.

So I suggest to you that even though you may concentrate on one special field of interest, keep your viewpoint broad. Keep your college curriculum as diversified as possible. Attend lectures and concerts, the theatres and museums. Above all, read and read, and listen and listen! But pay scant heed to the oracle who says there's no route to the top but that of specialization. I don't believe it!"

Clemson Opens '62 Season With Win Over VMI, Loss To UNC

VMI Falls To Scrappy Tigers; Brennan, Mahaffey Lead Scoring

By BILL LINN
Tiger Sports Writer

The Clemson Tiger basketball team opened up their 1961-62 season Saturday night with an 87-84 win over VMI. The cadets from Va. brought down what was considered as their best teams in years to battle the sophomore-laden Tigers. Coach Press Maravich of Clemson having an exceptional freshman squad last year started four sophomores against VMI, and used four others throughout the game.

Jim Brennan, star soph guard, led the Tigers in scoring with 21 points. Brennan, from McKeesport, Pa., broke the school's scoring record as a freshman last year with a 28.3 output per game. Tom Mahaffey, the only senior in the starting lineup, scored 18 points and led both teams in rebounding.

The entire group of 8 sophomores played, and all looked well in their appearances. Clemson was behind most of the first half although by no more than five points at anytime. Nick Malasnovich, Clemson's soph guard, sparked a Clemson surge toward the end of the first half, and the Tigers were behind at the half by only one point, 45-44.

Milasnovich had 10 points in the first half, but did not score in the second half. The second half was nip and tuck all the way with neither team giving an inch. Mike Bohonak, soph guard, got hot in the second half and hit seven of eight field goals to end the night with 15 points. In the closing minutes of the game,

Intramural Tennis Tourney Won By Freshman Brogden

The finals of the intramural tennis tournament were played last Monday on varsity court behind the field house. The tournament champion was Loren Brogden, a freshman from New Jersey. Brogden defeated Dr. C. W. Bolen in the final round, 1-6, 6-1, 6-2. This marks the first time in a long while that a student has copped the championship. Bolen was top seeded; Brogden was second. On his way to the title Brogden posted victories over Tom Peele, 6-1, 6-1; Chuck Landon 6-0, 6-0; David Hobson 6-0, 5-7, 6-2.

This year's tournament had many interesting and well played matches. Under Dr. Gil Miller's direction the tournament was run off in fine style, although some bad weather held the final rounds back. Our congratulations go to Loren Brogden, tennis "champ" for 1961!

Blue Devils Win A.C.C. Crown By Downing U.N.C.

The Atlantic Coast Conference football teams have closed out their seasons with Duke on top. There were two games played last week in the ACC. Notre Dame visited Duke only to be beat and the University of North Carolina beat the University of Virginia in Chapel Hill.

This marked the close of a very mixed-up season with no Atlantic Coast Conference team going to a bowl. Maryland came closer to a bowl than did the others, but a loss to Virginia in the next to the last game kept them from making the bowl trip this year.

Second in the conference standings was the University of Maryland with a 7-3 won-lost record. North Carolina and Clemson, both with 5-5 records, will share number three position for 1961.

Senior Tom Mahaffey Begins Third Season

By TOMMY PEELE
Tiger Sports Writer

The only veteran in the starting line-up for Clemson's soph laden basketball team this season is senior captain Tommy Mahaffey. Tom has led the Tiger cagers in rebounding the past two years, and he should be one of the better players in the conference this season.

A versatile 6-7 performer, Tommy came to Clemson from La Grange, Georgia. He lettered two years in basketball in high school and was selected to the all-state team his senior year. He made all-tournament in the state tournament, although his team was eliminated in the semifinals. His biggest thrill of the season occurred when he scored 42 points against Jordan High of Columbus, Ga.

Mahaffey had several scholarship offers, but he chose Clemson. His father was a Clemson man, and he sold Tommy on the idea of coming to Clemson. Tommy may attempt professional basketball next season, but he hopes to go to graduate school before entering industry. His major at Clemson is textile management.

The Tiger captain sees Wake Forest as the team to beat in the conference. He rates Duke as the runner-up and ranks the other 6 teams nearly equal. As for Clemson, Tommy says "If the sophomores come through we should have a good season."

Mahaffey is very versatile in that he has played both forward and center for the Tigers. He played Center his sophomore year, and forward his junior year, and is playing forward again this year. Currently, his younger brother, Donnie, is playing center for the Tigers.

Agile for a big man, Tommy possesses an excellent eye for the basket. Twice he has led the Tigers in field goal percentage; a remarkable 46.5% as a soph, and 43.4% last year. During the same period his

N. Carolina Wins Heartbreaker In Final Seven Seconds 54-52

By FRED CRAFT
Assistant Tiger Sports Editor

Heartbreak, that's the only word to describe Clemson's 54-52 loss to the University of North Carolina. The Tigers tied the game with 27 seconds left at 52-52 and the fans went wild. North Carolina, playing the cool part it is noted for, worked the ball around until they broke a man loose under the basket with 5 seconds to go and it was good-night Clemson.

The Tigers made numerous errors and it could be said that they gave the game away. Fouls hurt Clemson considerably as both Donnie Mahaffey and Jim Brennan fouled out and Tom Mahaffey was burdened with four personals for the latter part of the second half.

If Clemson had a star Tuesday night, it was Nick Milasnovich. The sophomore came off the bench to score 15 points, high for both teams, and to make four crucial foul shots, the last tying up the game. Next was Manning Privette who made a good showing picking off numerous rebounds and scoring seven points, second high for the Tigers.

The officiating was debatable with missed calls hurting both squads but Clemson more than Carolina. It seemed that when Clemson got close, a foul, bad call, or error erased the chance to go ahead. At one point, Clemson was charged with four fouls or violations in succession, giving the Tar Heels the break they needed.

The game was marked by unsportsmanlike conduct from both players, coaches, and fans. This was only to be expected as Clemson wanted more than anything else to win and they put up a whale of a fight. Students should be praised for sticking with the Tigers even when it seemed that all was lost.

At one time in the first half, North Carolina sported a 14 point lead but the Tigers narrowed it down to 26-32 at the half. It was nip and tuck in the second half with Clemson always staying within striking distance. Numerous times the Tigers were within three points but they couldn't get the big play.

North Carolina on the other hand, had the ball bouncing their way almost the entire night. If Clemson got too close, something would happen and North Carolina again had a sizable lead. Clemson never led and tied the game in the last 27 seconds to bring the crowd to their feet.

If the North Carolina game is any indication of the potential of Clemson this season, it can be said that the Tigers will be tough. Take away the errors and missed foul shots and the game would have been close. By the way, the Tigers made only one foul shot in the first half while missing six.

The scoring went as follows: for Clemson, Milasnovich 15, Brennan 6, Burnisky 4, Tom Mahaffey 0, Donnie Mahaffey 4, Bohonak 5, Hall 2, Privette 7, Morgan 4, and Benson 5. The Tigers got most of its help from the bench as the regulars didn't have the needed scoring punch.

Tiger Cubs Crush Anderson JC; Piedmont Rangers Eke Past Cubs

The Clemson freshman basketball squad opened their season Saturday night against Anderson Junior College and Tuesday night, The Cubs were fighting a hopeless battle from the start against players and umpires alike. Bad calls on the game and continued to increase their lead as the game progressed. The Cubs, after a fast and furious first half, held a rather commanding lead of 52-34, but roared back into the second half still hungry for points.

Rudy Antonio, a 6-3 forward, led the scoring with 28 points. Antonio was followed by Donnie Sietz with 21 and Ronnie Cox scored 11 while Stuart Mac Holmes and Jerry McMahon netted 10 points each. Avery Nelson and Bruce Wofford added eight and six points respectively.

After their impressive win over Anderson Junior College the Cubs made a similar attempt against the Piedmont Rangers Tuesday night. The Cubs were fighting a hopeless battle from the start against players and umpires alike. Bad calls on the game and continued to increase their lead as the game progressed. The Cubs, after a fast and furious first half, held a rather commanding lead of 52-34, but roared back into the second half still hungry for points.

The Cubs played a good game for the first five minutes, but then hit a long dry spell in shooting as the Rangers began to increase their lead. The scrappy freshman team all but closed the impossible gap in the second half, but costly foul shots in the closing seconds kept them from going ahead.

The top scorer for the Rangers was Earl Maxwell with 31 points and Dag Wilson who netted 21 points for the evening. The Rangers played such Clemson stars as Earl Maxwell, Ed Krawjack, and Vince Yockel.

Donnie Sietz was the leading scorer for the losing Cubs with 22 points. Ronnie Cox was second with 18 while Sam Cohn netted 16 and Stuart Mac Holmes added 14 points.

The Clemson freshman team that went 17-2 last year suffered one of its losses at the hands of the Piedmont Rangers, but have thus far this year proved to be nothing less than the best as varsity material. The Cubs this year should have another good season and

Sportsmanship Cabinet Release

By JOHN LANEY
Press Committee

The Cabinet commends the Clemson delegation to the South Carolina Student Legislature for their fine accomplishments at the state meeting last week-end in Columbia.

The possibility is being considered by the Cabinet of appointing a committee to present information to the student body concerning the Student Health Service. This committee would also make suggestions to Dr. Hair concerning possible improvements in the health service and suggestions pertaining to the proposed new campus hospital. Tentatively, this committee would be composed of an architectural student, a pre-med student and a coed.

The Cabinet would like to see Clemson win the Atlantic Coast Conference Sportsmanship Trophy for basketball this year. There is a definite need for improvement in the behavior of Clemson students at basketball contests. Students should recognize the importance of being gentlemen at all times. Childish behavior such as shown at Clemson's home basketball games not only reflects on the individuals but on the educational institution as well.

Paul Goodson made a report about plans already completed for the SUSGA Conference to be held at Clemson in the spring. He announced that meeting rooms had been obtained for the various meetings to be held at this conference. The Cabinet commends Paul and his committee for a job well done.

Further plans have been made concerning the proposal of instituting an honor system at Clemson. There was much discussion at the Cabinet meeting last Monday night as to whether membership in such an organization should be mandatory or on a voluntary basis concerning new students. It was the consensus of the Cabinet at this time that membership in such an organization should be voluntary. The Cabinet hopes to work with the Faculty Senate in formulating further plans for this proposal.

Fellowships Furnish Funds For Future

A growing practice among leading Southeastern firms is that of awarding graduate fellowships for study and research. Each year, 12 fellowships are awarded to graduate students at Clemson College to enable them to better prepare themselves for careers in varied research and development fields.

David M. Hall of Lafayette, Ala., and Byron L. Richardson of Newberry, are two students typifying this new trend. Both are conducting textile chemistry research at the Clemson College School of Textiles, and have been awarded $2,400 fellowships to cover academic and living expenses for one year.

Auburn University and working for the American Viscose Corp. at Fredericksburg, Va., came to Clemson to do research on the mechanisms of cellulose cross-linking by using model compounds. By determining how this cross-linking is affected by chemical compounds, he hopes to improve the crease resistance of certain fabrics. Hall is being sponsored by the Celanese Corp. of America.

Richardson, a recent graduate of Newberry College where he majored in chemistry, is being sponsored by the Dow-Corning Corp. By working with particular cross-linking agents, he hopes to determine their effects on the structure of cellulose fibers.

P. C. Sponsors Concert

Student Government Association and the Inter-Fraternity Council of Presbyterian College will sponsor a concert by The Four Freshmen, one of America's top recording teams, Tuesday at 8 p.m. in Belk Auditorium in Clinton on the P. C. campus.

Two representatives of the P. C. Inter-Fraternity Council visited the Clemson campus Monday morning to explain to leaders of our student body their plans for the concert and to invite Clemson students to attend the event.

Tickets for the concert will be handled here by members of the Clemson Inter-Fraternity Council. All fraternity presidents will have tickets to be sold or students desiring tickets may see John Crow, IFC president, in Room 7-207 to obtain tickets.

The Four Freshmen, vocal and instrumental stars of Capitol Records, is composed of Ross Barbour, Don Barbour, Ken Albers and Bob Flanigan. The group began singing at Arthur Jordan Conservatory in Indianapolis in 1948 while they were freshmen.

Their sound started with a "barber-shop" flavor. After singing several months for their board and keep, the group decided to try to get a five-voice sound with only four voices.

That original idea of the Four Freshmen grew and has been polished and perfected until now the group stands at the top, known all over the country for their distinctive, original style. Stan Kenton heard the group in Dayton, Ohio, in 1950, and after one audition he signed them to a Capitol Recording contract and sent them to Hollywood.

"Day By Day" Since 1955 when "Day by Day" was their highly successful single, the Four Freshmen have had many hits. Included among their hits have been "Graduation Day," "Charmaine," "Julie Is Her Name" and "Whistle Me Some Blues."

The group has also had several successful albums—"Voices in Modern," "Freshman Favorites," "Four Freshmen and Five Trumpets," "Four Freshmen and Five Saxes," "Voices in Latin" and "Four Freshmen in Person."

Not only has the group been successful with their recordings but in making appearances as well. They have been featured on several TV shows and, in 1956, appeared in the Nat Cole-Ted Heath concert tour.

Bob Flanigan sings the top voice, plays trombone and doubles on bass. Don Barbour, the second voice, is featured on many solos and plays guitar. Ross Barbour handles all the introductions, sings third voice and plays drums and trumpet.

Ken Albers, the bass voice in the group, plays trumpet and mellow-phone and is featured solo-wise both vocally and instrumentally. Bob, Ross and Don are original members of the group and are all from Indiana. Ken, who replaced Ken Errair with the Freshmen in April, 1956, is from New Jersey.

The Four Freshmen have won the "Best Vocal Group" category in the Metronome Magazine poll the last three years, Downbeat poll the last four years and in 1957 led the field in the Billboard and United Press Disc-Jockey's poll and Playboy Magazine Jazz poll. Very few entertainers please the public, critics and fellow professionals as well as this group, according to critiques.

Nobody can make a fool out of a person if he isn't the right kind of material for the job.
